Two workshops on gender in the research content at the Technology Agency of the Czech Republic

On 21st May 2019, two workshops on the gender dimension in research content and unconscious bias in project evaluation were conducted at the Technology Agency of the Czech Republic as part of the GEECCO project. The staff training event targeted two groups: administrators of the ZÉTA programme and internal evaluators. After the introduction to terminology and gender equality policies in Europe, examples of gender bias were mentioned and gendered innovations that led to better research results and validity were presented and discussed.

The workshops were organized as part of internal implementation of gender policies, with the ZÉTA programme being used for piloting of evaluation and integration of the gender dimension in the research content.

The workshop leader was Maxime Forest from Yellow Window (GEECCO partner).
